OVER 500 CONTESTANTS STRUGGLE FOR PRIZES IN MERRY CONTESTS AT PARK

Fifty Events, With Long List of Trophies, Crowd Lists, in Which Every One Has Opportunity to Take Home a Souvenir of the Big Day
PIE EATERS, CRACKER CHEWERS PRESENT
Committee Overwhelmed with Entrants, Gives up Attempt to List Them; Checks Winners to Stand Where Winnings Are Collected by Victors

Big men, little men, fat men and lean men, fat women, stout women, lean women, big boys and little boys, milk-drinking boys, pie-eaters and cracker-chewers, had one dream day of contests at the big city picnic yesterday. The contest for homeliest man was scratched. There were no homely men at the picnic.

It was a day to talk about, for the contests ran a steady stream from early morning up until 7 o'clock and the prizes and the competitions were of every sort imaginable.

GLENDALE BABIES OUT FOR BIG PRIZES

Pendroy's Adds $100 in Merchandise to Press $100 Cash

The babies of Glendale who are of the ambitious sort, have special reason to sit up and take notice, for the Glendale Press is offering $100 in cash, and Pendroy's store is offering $100 in merchandise for the best babies in Glendale. The conditions and rules of the contest will be found on another page. To date fifteen entries have been made. More are coming with every mail.

Babies of Glendale are evidently of the up-and-coming sort who maintain the reputation of Glendale as the swiftest moving city in the United States.

Yesterday, for the first time the Glendale Press announced in a page advertisement that the babies of Glendale, Eagle Rock and Burbank would be automatically entered in the Los Angeles Express baby contest wherein more than 700 prizes, worth over $3000, will be bestowed, and the first mail this morning brought thirteen entries.

Leading the list in alphabetic order was Barbara Elaine Benson, who lives with her parents at 229 South Central avenue, this city, and who is two years and 7 months old. The Bensons arrived in Glendale from Mason City, Iowa, where Mr. Benson was superintendent of a school for Cerro Gordo county. He has joined the staff of the Glendale Realty company and in this early identifying himself with the interests of the community, he has shown that he is a real citizen who has come to stay.

The community made up of "has-beens" and "retireds" cannot expect to get very far in the sisterhood of cities, but Glendale is not that sort. It believes in babies. The attendance on its schools which last year showed an increase of 30 to 40 per cent, proves this. The young married set in Glendale represents a big proportion of its population. They are all home-makers and not hotel lizards, and babies are welcome.

Other entrants are:

Grace Elizabeth Hilbert, seven months old, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hilbert, of 560 Sycamore canyon road.

Alice Elizabeth Kent, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Kent, 174 South Eaglelake avenue, Eagle Rock, and 2 years, 8 months old.

Margaret Belle Sisley, two years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Sisley, 630 East Maple street, Glendale.

Jerry Simon, 22 months old, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Simon, 1134 Viola street.

Randall F. Chester, 14 months old, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Chester, 851 West Colorado, Eagle Rock.

William Moseby Darden, six months old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Darden.

Bettie Jane Menk, 2 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore H. Menk, 143 South Isabel street, Glendale.

Corinne Weinert, 2 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Weinert, 502 West California street, Glendale.

June Florence Cole, 1 year, 8 months old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Cole, of 1240 Justin avenue, Glendale.

Kathryn O'Neill, 6 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. O'Neill, 1142 East California, Glendale.

Ida Ellen Templeman, 19 months old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Templeman, 325 East Elk.

Eleanor Jackson, 1-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Jackson, of 332 North Orange street, Glendale.

Duane Charles Betry, 18-months old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Betry, of 335 West Lomita avenue.

Honk of Automobile Horn Shrieks Fear Into Heart of Lion

As far as known, there's only one thing that will strike fear into the heart of the monarch of the animal kingdom. And it's such a simple thing, something that terrorizes many a person daily, the honk of the automobile horn. On the editorial page this evening you will find a very entertaining article under the heading, "The Auto Honk and the Lion."

Henry James this evening in one of his comments on the day's news, says that the person of a dual personality many times keeps his better half in very bad company. He treats on the subject of insanity, which, in many cases, is entered as a plea for some heinous crime.

These days, no one is born to the purple. It is a matter of achievement, says James W. Foley, in the "Listening Post," this evening. He refers to a few inconsequential kings, and then analyzes the matter of achievement.

Completing one of the most interesting and instructive editorial pages in this section, are able editorials, articles by Dr. Frank Crane, John Pilgrim, poetry, truths in epigram, eastern point of view, and a brief lesson in correct English.

DR. POMEROY TO PASS ON P. E. SHACK

Supervisor Wright Says County Can Do Nothing Without Health Office

COMPLAINT REFEREE

Flood Protection Is Taken Up With Department for Expenditure

The county supervisors have under consideration at this time the matter of the Mexican shack, located on the Pacific Electric right-of-way near Central avenue, and the problem of flood control for the Verdugo residents. A definite reply with regard to either of these matters cannot be given at this time, according to a communication from Supervisor Wright addressed to City Manager Reeves, but early action is hoped for.

Supervisor Wright's communication follows:

"Replying to your communication of the 8th inst. will say that I have received petitions from Glendale residents asking for flood protection and this matter I am taking up with the flood control department, with the view of securing, if possible, the expenditure of some county flood funds in that locality before the rainy season begins. I expect to have something definite to report on this matter within a few days."

"Also received a letter from one of the citizens protesting against certain structures located in the right-of-way of the Pacific Electric company, built for the purpose of housing Mexicans. I have conferred with the board about this matter and also with the county council, and they do not seem to have power to do anything about it unless it be done through the county health department. We have, therefore, referred the matter to Dr. Pomeroey for him to make an early investigation and report."

CITY FIGHT ON WATER POLLUTERS

City Manager Reeves, P. Dieckrich, superintendent of the public service department of the city of Glendale, and a number of other employees of the city, appeared at 10 o'clock this morning in the superior court of Los Angeles county, to serve as witnesses in the case of the city of Glendale vs. Gordon & Harrison, sand and gravel contractors.

The city is endeavoring to compel the company to desist from contaminating the water supply of the city at the company's plant, which is located in Verdugo canyon a short distance above the city's reservoir.

SPOONING PARTIES
After-dinner spooning parties are proving to be a nuisance to the city of Glendale, according to a complaint filed by J. W. Duhning of 1940 Mountain street, with the police department Tuesday.

According to Mr. Duhning these parties, very often comprising three or four machines, gather at this intersection, and the occupants laugh and talk until a late hour, the noise being sufficient to keep the residents of that section awake. The Glendale police have promised to take care of this situation.

CHRISTENING OF GLENDAL VERDUGO PARK DRAWS HUGE CROWD FROM MANY POINTS

All Glendale and Sister Cities Pour Hosts of Guests to the New Playground Area of This District in the Verdugo Canyon

TWENTY THOUSAND PEOPLE ATTEND EVENT

Gorgeous Display of Fireworks, Band Concert and Dancing Contest Concludes Program of Day During Which There Was No Idle Moment

Glendale Verdugo Park opened yesterday with the biggest christening party ever held in this part of California.

More than twenty thousand attended the big party, held under the auspices of the Glendale Credit association, and participated in by most of the organizations of Glendale.

Lines of automobiles stretched beyond the parking place on all the side highways.

Crowds poured in from the Glendale-Montrose railroad.

Parties came from Burbank, Eagle Rock, La Cienega, Tujunga, Sunland, Pasadena, Los Angeles, everywhere.

Some brought luncheons, others patronized the stands of the Tuesday Afternoon club. Others sought refreshment at the dozens of concessionaires. The balloon man was there selling his wares to the child life.

Quaint paper hats appeared on childish heads.

There were benches for everyone, tables for all, and the shade of the great trees was a grateful treat.

The temperature was fully 20 degrees less than in Glendale, according to Secretary Rhoades of the chamber of commerce.

This added to the comfort of the spectators of the ball games and to the dancers in the big pavilion.

There was brief oratory, which marked the appearance of Congressman Lineberger in public since his return, and the entrance of Senator Lester Francis of Iowa into local affairs.

Mayor Robinson sent a congratulatory telegram from Sacramento. Mattison B. Jones did the same. City Manager Reeves bore the brunt of the city's participation during the day. And when he called for a collection to assist in supporting the Merchants' ball team during its game with the Cleary Athletic club, he got a generous response.

From early morning until night, there were no serious accidents. The city emergency hospital was ready, but had nothing to do.

There were rest-rooms for the women and children. The police did good work with the traffic, which every moment threatened congestion, but there were no arrests.

Never was thirst so keen, hunger so urgent, ice cream so tempting.

The Credit association teams opened the baseball of the day. The teams played until Umpire Rhoades was compelled to go elsewhere. The score was 16 to 19.

Toward the close of the evening, daylight fireworks promised a wonderful treat for the night.

Before lunch the Pulliam and Kiefer ambulance drove into the park and the crowd leaving was greater than it had been in the afternoon.

Th eband concert, the dancing and the fireworks closed the evening with a climax that will be long remembered.

One of the happiest instances of the entire day and an occurrence that brought a smile of pleasure to the faces of practically every Glendallan was the arrival of Harry Girard on the picnic grounds. This was the first public affair that Mr. Girard has attended since he was injured several weeks ago.

Before lunch the Pulliam and Kiefer ambulance drove into the park and Mr. Girard was taken out and wheeled to a vantage point from which he greeted his many friends and watched the various contests.

There were two emergency hospitals on the grounds; one conducted by the city, in charge of Miss Bessie Barlow, and the other operated by the Research hospital. In addition to these two hospitals the Boy Scouts of Glendale had an emergency first aid outfit on the grounds in charge of two Merit Badge Scouts. These boys, under the direction of Scout Executive H. F. Benner, had their headquarters in the Glendale Daily Press tent and did excellent work in dressing the injuries of several people hit by baseballs during the ball game.

Everyone had a great time yesterday at the Glendale Credit for several days a crew of city employees, under the direction of Street Superintendent L. Deward, has been busy at the park cleaning up the property, erecting the dance pavilion and completing other buildings to be permanent adjuncts of the park.

Through the efforts of Manager Fred Deal of the Glendale telephone office a phone was installed.

GLENDAL - VERDUGO PARK HAILED WITH DELIGHT

The people of Glendale in general believe that in Glendale-Verdugo park they have one of the finest pieces of park land in Southern California, which is saying a great deal. It is just a question of "fixing 'er up a bit," of putting in a few man-made improvements. Then there will be nothing in the county that can surpass it.

Listen to what some of the leaders say of the city's new acquisition:

"This opening day is a wonderful event. It is a fitting affair for such a wonderful park. The people do not fully realize now what this park is and what it will some day be. Later they will know the truth. Glendale is to be congratulated"—from Charles B. Guthrie.

Judge Lowe said: "What a grand day. It is like a great big family gathering. The people of Glendale will show their appreciation of this park in the years that are to come."

"Fine, fine! There is a big crowd and altogether it is a wonderful occasion. It is a beautiful park," said W. E. Mercer.

"A dandy big crowd—far more than we expected. There must be at least 10,000 people here," from Councilman Kimlin.

"This park is a wonderful asset to Glendale," said L. H. Wilson. "There is nothing like it," said Val Hollister, president of the chamber of commerce. "The city should spend all that is needed to put it in fine shape. It will some day be one of the finest parks in Southern California."

"They are making a wonderful park out of this place," said H. L. Miller. "It is a lot better than I thought it would be."

"Fine! Great! More than worth the money," said Mr. Siden-glar of the Circle Real Estate company.

"This park is the best thing ever," said Realtor Nichols. "Big crowd, wonderful time. It is a place the city should be proud of."

"Great!" said Jessie Smith. "A little more work and it will be the finest park in Southern California."

Everybody had a good word for the park. That it is a place of which the city may justly feel proud, is the general opinion. Its natural beauty and its proximity to the center of the city are two of its principal features.

RETURNED HOME
Miss Frances Pittman, daughter of Mrs. Charles Pittman of 1335 South San Fernando road, was returned to her home last night by Officers Kerns and Clayton, after being absent for more than 24 hours. She was located in Hollywood, after a search in which police of Glendale, Los Angeles and Hollywood took part.

MACHINES MEET
F. H. W. Rueford of 246 Sierra Vista avenue, Eagle Rock, was the operator of a machine that collided at the corner of Broadway and Glendale avenue with a car driven by Carl D. Engle, of 814 East Harvard street. The accident occurred at 10 o'clock last night. Little damage was done.

Governor Stephens to Be Guest of Kiwanis Club

The arrival of Governor Vista avenue, Eagle Rock, was the guest of the Kiwanis club, has stirred the republican ranks of the city.

The Rotary club and the National Exchange club have been invited by the Kiwanis club to assist in the reception of the state executive, who, in these days of the campaign, has struck at his opponents straight from the shoulder and pointed to the underlying cause of the opposition, the Southern Pacific and allied interests.

It is expected the state's executive will enter further into his fight for proper control of the state, at the luncheon tomorrow, at the Broadway inn.

FIREWORKS DRAW MANY THOUSANDS

1,500 Autos and 15,000 People Estimated See Display

GOOD BAND MUSIC

Dance Pavilion Draws Its Largest Crowd at Night

If the park was crowded during the afternoon it was literally packed at night. Conservative estimates fix the number of people in the park during the evening at 15,000, and the number of machines at about 1,500.

Cars were parked in the park, in front of the park and down the side road as far as Canada boulevard in the Verdugo Woodlands tract. Every foot of parking space was taken and the members of the Glendale police force were kept on their toes every minute to handle the traffic so as to eliminate accidents.

The cars of the Glendale-Montrose line were run at frequent intervals and cared very efficiently for those wishing to travel by "trolley."

The fireworks started shortly before 8 o'clock and continued until almost 9. These included night fireworks of almost every description. There were rockets of various kinds, showers, sprays, waterfalls, light bombs in fact, everything imaginable. They were, without doubt, the most beautiful fireworks ever seen in Glendale.

The Elks' band was on hand and gave one of its popular concerts during the evening. The boys, in their navy white suits, presented a very attractive appearance. The band was grouped beneath the spreading oaks, with the benches for the hundreds of listeners assembled around them. The program rendered was unusually pleasing and struck a responsive chord in the hearts of those present. The services of these band boys were donated, for the occasion, and the music furnished was certainly appreciated. It is understood that this band has been engaged by the city for weekly concerts in the new city park, these, possibly, to be given each Sunday evening.

The wonderful festivities of the evening were such as to put a very appropriate "finishing touch" to a very remarkable and extremely eventful day. They constituted a fitting climax for the opening of the beautiful new city park.

P. E. CALLS FOR BRAND PAVING MONEY

The work of lowering the tracks of the Pacific Electric company on Brand boulevard from Colorado to Windsor will be indefinitely delayed unless the property owners along that thoroughfare deposit their subscription money in the Glendale state bank by Saturday noon, according to information received from a reliable source this morning. E. C. Johnson, chief engineer of the Pacific Electric company, was in Glendale Tuesday morning for the purpose of looking over the ground preparatory to starting work on this improvement, but when he found that only one-third of the money had been turned into the bank, he stated definitely that the railway company cannot start work until the property owners along Brand have carried out their part of the agreement.

Mr. Johnson stated that if the money had been in the bank as agreed upon he would have turned his gang loose on Brand this morning. He states, however, that the matter is entirely in the hands of the Glendale people. If the money is in the bank by Saturday noon the work will, unless something unforeseen happens, start the first of the week.

CONGRESSMAN LINEBERGER, SUPERVISOR WRIGHT AND SENATOR FRANCIS SPEAK

Latter, From Des Moines, Iowa, Is Welcomed by Glendale, Eagle Rock and Burbank Home State Citizens as a New Californian

LINEBERGER SAYS HE HAS BEEN SQUARE

Supervisor Wright Declared Los Angeles County Was Growing With the Best People From All Other Communities

Congressman Walter Lineberger, Supervisor Henry Wright and Senator Leslie E. Francis of Des Moines, Iowa, were the orators of the day marking the opening of the Glendale-Verdugo city park.

Congressman Lineberger spoke as a candidate for re-nomination and re-election; Supervisor Wright, as a candidate for the nomination to succeed himself, and Senator Francis, as an Iowan, talking mainly to Iowans, and he declared, for, before he began to speak, he found himself surrounded by men and women of his own state. After he spoke he found more Iowans ready to welcome him to California.

Having become interested in the development of the Sparr tract adjoining the Verdugo Woodlands tract in the canyon, he has already identified himself with affairs in the region of the new park. Senator Francis was accompanied by his son, Merwyn, with whom he had driven to Eagle Rock in a week from 200 miles east of Omaha, Neb., making from 400 to 475 miles a day, in a King Eight, passing everything on the road.

Mayor Robinson was present by telegram at the opening of the park, his regrets coming from Sacramento by wire to City Manager Reeves, who introduced the speakers of the day. Mattison B. Jones also sent his congratulations.

Congressman Lineberger declared he was proud of his district and of its growth, with the best people in the state.

"I shall always be honest, fair and square with you," he declared. "I have no ambition other than to serve you."

Supervisor Wright declared the board of which he is one is proud of Los Angeles county and referred to the growth of the county.

Senator Francis won instantaneous applause when he declared: "Hailing from Iowa, I feel completely at home in California, for as New York has more Jews than Jerusalem and more Irish than Ireland, so California has more Iowans than Californians."

Detailed report of the addresses will be found on another page.

MERCHANTS AND CLEARY TEAMS CROSS BATS

Latter Wins After Close Struggle to Sixth Inning

The Glendale Merchants and the Cleary Athletic club baseball team crossed bats yesterday at the Glendale Credit association community picnic. A good time was had by all and the Clearys took home the long end of an 8 to 3 score. Harris, for the Merchants, pitched a good ball, striking out 15 men. Trautwein, for the Clearys, retired 11 Merchants over the strike route. The visitors took Harris for eight safe hits, giving the Merchants six in return.

This was the second time the two teams have crossed bats. The first time they played in Glendale they went home on the losers end of the score. The game yesterday split the series and decided nothing.

Neither side knows which is the best aggregation of horsehide pounders. Boss Cobb says the Merchants are—and that is just what the Clearys say about themselves.

It was the first time the diamond had ever been played on and it was rough.

There may be some doubt as to which team is the best, but there is no doubt as to their ability as crabs. Every umpire's decision was good for a debate, with the Clearys doing the protesting.

Boss Cobb said after the game that there is a possibility of a rematch between the two nines. The next game will be played on the Merchants' diamond at San Fernando and Park avenue.

CREDIT MEN HIT BALL TOO HARD; GET TIRED

Umpire Rhoades Saves Teams by Calling it a Day Early

Just fancy Judge Owen C. Emery sliding his tummy for second base, Jess Smith making a sensational one-hand catch and throwing the ball to Robert Plume, in order to catch the judge off base. Yes, just fancy.

While this particular situation did not arise, there were many more just as amusing occurrences at the ball game yesterday, between two teams handicapped from the membership of the Glendale Credit association.

The teams were captained by H. M. Butts, who led the victorious team in the recent membership drive of the Credit association, and Walter P. Potter, who was the leader of the losers in the same campaign. The ball teams finished the game yesterday in the same order they finished the drive for members.

Captain Potter's team played good ball. They played darn good ball. They fly in the ointment was that Captain Butts' aggregation played a little better brand. The Potter nine tucked 16 runs away safely in their side of the score book and everything was pretty until the score book was tallied and proved that the Butts nine had crossed the pan 19 times.

The teams started out at 10:30 in the morning to play a full nine-inning game, but along about 11:30 they decided the game had gone far enough, so they called it a day. The gang was getting hungry anyhow. Umpire Rhoades was getting warm and Umpire Reeves had to stop in time to cool off so he could introduce the speakers scheduled to address the crowd.

Several of the players remarked as they left the field, "it was a great game. This sort of exercise is good for a man that is cooped up all day in an office—but, gosh, I am tired."

The batting order of the winners follows: Butts, Kirkman, Green, Smith, Plume, MacMullin, Hooper, Downing and McGuire.

THE WEATHER
Southern California: Tonight and Friday, fair.
Los Angeles and vicinity: Fair weather with moderate temperature tonight and Friday. Cloudy in the morning.

PRIZE DANCERS ADD ZEST TO PARK EVENTS

The Mitchells and Miss Morton and Geo. Hastings Get Firsts

Both young and old tripped the light fantastic yesterday afternoon and evening at the picnic given by the Glendale Credit association at Glendale's new city park. There was an open-air pavilion provided for dancing, and the floor was filled to capacity at both times.

Music of the finest kind was furnished by Bill Bode's orchestra, and who could resist "stepping around" to such syncopation?

Little Miss Adeline Woodbury of 111 East Orange Grove avenue gave two pretty solo dances at both sessions. Herbert Henning furnished piano music for her dancing.

Interesting features of the evening were the prize dances. The first one was a prize waltz for married couples only. The prize was an electric waffle iron, donated by the Smith Electric company, and was awarded Mr. and Mrs. George Mitchell by popular applause. This dance was at 8 o'clock.

At the hour of nine a prize waltz for everyone was given, and first prize was awarded Miss Dorothy Morton and George Hastings. Second prize was awarded Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Jones, and third went to Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Babson. All prizes were awarded by popular applause. Six of the best couples were chosen first, and after they had danced, three of the six were picked out. The popular applause received by each of these three then determined the winners. There was much enthusiasm during these dances.

Don Webb, who was in charge, certainly did his duty in a splendid manner, announcing the dances and the prize winners.

The public is invited to a dance and card party to be given by the Pythian Sisters at the K. of P. hall, Park avenue and Brand boulevard, tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. A business meeting will be held at 7 o'clock, which will be followed by the card party. Five hundred and پنجاه will be played, and refreshments will be served.

SEC'Y RHOADES CLARA KIMBALL AND WIFE WIN YOUNG FILM IN BEAN PRIZES EXPENSIVE SET

He Guesses Exact Number in Jar and She One Less

James Rhoades is champion bean-guesser of Glendale. After working for several hours this morning, counting the Arizona strawberries in the jar on which guesses were registered at the picnic yesterday, Frank Pilling, secretary of the Glendale Credit association, and H. M. McGuire announced that there were 4473 beans in the jar. Mr. Rhoades guessed the exact number of beans. He was awarded the Fletcher motor meter lock, offered by Harry F. Joy & Co.

Mrs. Rhoades received the first prize for her guess that there were 4472 beans in the jar. She was given a 214-pound can of Folger's Golden Gate coffee by E. A. Folger & Co.

A red tin of Snowflake crackers is waiting for Mrs. Rose A. Kent to claim it, as she won second prize with her guess of 4484 beans.

J. R. Butler, 1631 Del Valle street, guessed that there were 4444 beans in the jar. He was not exactly correct, but was near enough to the actual number to be declared winner of the can of Richelieu coffee, offered as third prize by Sprague, Warner & Co.

Mrs. Margaret Graham, 113 West Broadway, registered a guess that there were 4500 beans in the jar. She was awarded fourth prize, four packages of Jiffy Jell, by the Jeffy Dessert Co.

Another guess of 4500 beans, made by Dale Read of the campgrounds, was rewarded with a jar of peanut butter, given by the H. J. Heinze corporation.

Mr. Pilling said this morning that the prizes for the bean-guessing contest are at his office in the "Citizens" building and he urges that the winners call for them as soon as possible.

There are other uncalled for prizes being held in his office. Winners are requested to claim these awards at their first opportunity.

The lowest guess in the bean-guessing contest was registered by a contestant who said there were 159 beans in the jar. The highest guess was 117,651 beans. There were 741 guesses made.

J. T. Allen, 120 South Brand boulevard, was declared the winner of the special prize for the owner of the automobile having the highest registration number on the grounds. Mr. Allen's number was 776,127, and as his was the only number registered he was given the $16 eight-day keyless, rim-hill and set, luminous dial auto clock. "What No Man Knows," at Glendale, Had Special Scenery

Harry Garson, director of Clara Kimball Young pictures, is a critical director, and his staff of assistants are the same, having been schooled for years under Mr. Garson's able tutelage. His first assistant, Wade Butcher, was called upon to secure a courtroom for the big trial scenes of Clara Kimball Young's latest and great photodrama, "What No Man Knows." Mr. Butcher scoured Los Angeles and San Francisco, and surrounding cities. Nothing suited him, knowing Mr. Garson's critical requirements. After several weeks of fruitless search it was decided to build a courtroom finer than anything that existed in the state of California. The set cost in excess of $6000, and is one of the handsomest ever seen in any California studio. Many an entire bungalow has been built in Los Angeles for less than this sum. Yes, indeed, Harry Garson is an expensive director, yet wise is he, for this scene towers above any similar courtroom scene ever shown on the moving picture screen. "What No Man Knows" is at the Glendale theatre tonight only.

Schleifer, Daisy Vivian Reid, Anna Anova Peters, Marion Elvena Darrell, Nora Hallbrook Rogers.

One of the interesting features of the evening's program following the dinner, will be a class prophecy by a fairy, dressed in the class colors, ivory and green. Games will be played and a jolly social good time enjoyed.

"AUTO CASUALTIES"
An automobile driven by Clarence E. Toots of 543 Myrtle street and a bicycle on which Horace Anderson was riding, came together at the corner of Central and Myrtle at 5 o'clock Tuesday. The front wheel of the bike was broken, but no one was injured.

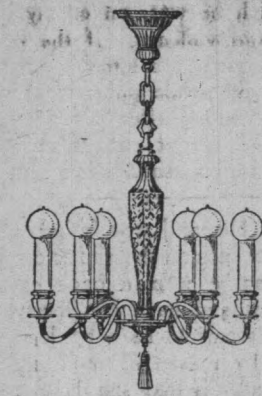

Another car driven by Mrs. George E. McComber of Los Angeles and a machine operated by Frank Lulas of Los Angeles, collided on San Fernando road at 9:30 o'clock last night. Very little damage resulted.

At about 9 o'clock yesterday a car belonging to C. W. Spickerman of 121 North Kenwood street, and a sedan, the identity of the driver of which could not be learned, collided at the corner of Glendale avenue and Broadway. Although the damage was slight, the cars became connected in such a manner as to make it difficult to separate them.

Being up-to-date and according to specifications is all that is expected in a wife.

CONCERNING PATRIOTISM

Recently the New York Tribune commented on an article by F. B. Kaye that had appeared in The Nation. It expressed disapproval of the Kaye sentiments. The comment chanced later to be among editorial excerpts presented on this page. So it happens that the editor of The Nation sends along a copy of the original Kaye production, with a letter telling of his surprise that the Tribune should so have misinterpreted the paper. A reading of the entire paper tends to uphold the Tribune.

Readers of current periodicals know that The Nation is quite devoid of that quality it finds objectionable in others, and which commonly is called patriotism. That patriotism may be the last refuge of a scoundrel the world has been assured by no less an authority than Dr. Johnson. So may any other activity, calling or passion, that has a following among mankind. Even religion has been used as a cloak, and under the mantle of charity, thieves have levied toll. These facts have nothing to do with patriotism, with religion or charity. They relate only to imitations.

Kaye's assertion in one of his milder paragraphs is that patriotism, being instinctive, does not need to be taught. This might be true were there not so many agencies seeking to teach the opposite. Among these agencies might be listed a number of weekly publications. Whether in such a list the name of The Nation would appear is a delicate matter that does not need to be dwelt upon at this time.

People who are opposed to the teaching of patriotism to the young should remember that into this country pours a steady stream of aliens, many of whom, having lived under oppressive governments, arrive with hatred in their hearts for all governments. They do not understand the spirit of the constitution, do not wish to understand it. They regard it simply as something to be trampled underfoot. To teach patriotism would be nothing more than to combat the malign influence of this undesirable and dangerous element.

At this present moment a group of men with headquarters at Moscow, seek to dominate the world. Their hope is to destroy society as society now exists. They strive to spread to every land the ruin that festers on the face of their own tragic country. Everywhere they are sending emissaries to foster discontent and to fan this into revolution. They have shown themselves incompetent to accomplish anything but ruin, but their potency in this respect is to be feared. They are as a disease that spreads by infection.

To show Americans that the system under which they dwell is better than the Moscow plan; that prosperity is to be preferred to the sight of men and women dying of starvation on the highway; that liberty is superior to brutal tyranny; that their forefathers in founding this government were wise men, of high ideals, and that the structure they founded should be protected against anarchistic domination, failure, barbarism and ultimate chaos, is, of course, to teach them patriotism. Mr. Kaye may not like it. The Nation may not be pleased at it. But Americans believe in it, and doubtless will persist in it.

LORD NORTHCLIFFE

By the death of Lord Northcliffe, England has lost one of its most notable citizens. Indeed, it may be said that the world has lost one of its great figures. Irish by birth, but in his activities a leading factor in English affairs, Lord Northcliffe had a breadth of vision that encompassed so much as to keep him in touch with all peoples.

Probably he had won as many enemies as any publicist who might be mentioned. Some of these had been in his earlier career among his warm friends. In the discussion of policies he ignored the element of friendship wholly. Whatever he conceived to be right, or conceived to be wrong, his opinion drew no color from prejudice. None was spared whom he deemed deserving of censure.

The amount of work accomplished by the great journalist was marvelous. It was as though he had the energy of a score of men. That he bore the burden so long, that he was able at times to drop his work while he traveled abroad, and then resume it, knitting up the tangled threads, had for years been a marvel.

At the time his illness was announced as likely to terminate fatally, there was a statement in these columns as to his wonderful career. Now that the career has ended, it seems unnecessary to say more.

SO FAR AS IT GOES

Only a few days ago three desperadoes apprehended in the act of robbery, were killed by officers of the law in Los Angeles. Since then another of similar type has been shot while engaged in holding up a restaurant. But as these episodes were occurring, other robberies were being committed. The lesson seems clear. It is that while killing murderous thieves is good so far as it goes, it has not gone far enough. Of the four upon whom the coroner has held inquests, each resulting in praise for the quickness of the slayers, it is certain that none will threaten society again. Their careers are done. Public security has been promoted to an extent upon which the public is to be congratulated.

The law as ordinarily applied must be admitted, it is confessed without pride, to be ineffective. The dead criminals had been habitual criminals. They had been in court and in jail, variously penalized. Some of them, at the time they met the fate they had earned, were out on bail, with every intent of disappearing before the time of trial. All knew the likelihood of probation and parole, mostly through experience. Not one in the lot desired to be anything but that which he was, an enemy to society, existing by theft and violence. If the perpetrators of the more recent crimes were to be caught, doubtless they either would evade punishment wholly, or resume their usual courses after inadequate penalty. But the robber who is put out of business by a well directed load of buckshot, stays put.

Finding that her husband was father of six children, the mother of whom she did not have the pleasure of knowing, a woman back east has decided to let the husband have his liberty to marry his family. There seems to be a tendency to make her out a heroine by reason of such sacrifice, although the real wonder is that she did not chase the fellow off the premises with a scattergun the instant she found out the truth about him.

Having a good bunch of friends is pleasant whether it is profitable or not.

The eagle is a noble bird, but the common hen, after all, is perhaps of more value to mankind.

WHAT I CANNOT DO

By DR. FRANK CRANE

As I begin to take stock of the years and their attainments I have become more and more conscious of the many things I cannot do.

I can write passably enough to make a living and can make a fair speech. That is about all. I cannot dance or sing a song, or play the piano.

I cannot run a race on foot or excel in wrestling or jumping or athletic exercises.

I cannot manage any piece of machinery from a tack hammer to a locomotive.

I cannot add a column of figures correctly and never hope to be able to do so.

I cannot tame wild animals, break a horse or train a dog.

When I go to lay a book on the table I am never certain that it will not fall off.

I love chess and games of cards, but play them all poorly.

When in Italy I used to buy a one lira ticket in the national lottery every day for a period of some months and never won a solitary prize.

I cannot fix a clock or hang wallpaper, or paint a picture, or put up a stove pipe with any degree of success.

I was never able to become popular in a club, party, church or community, so that I was never elected to anything in my life, except to some position no one else wanted.

I am wholly deficient in the power of competition.

I am very fond of women, but have never been popular among them so that I could really call myself a ladies' man.

When I was young I had as many ambitions as there are divisions of human activity. At different times I thought I would be a lawyer, a physician, a botanist, an entomologist, a Greek scholar, a professor of modern languages, a business man, a great orator, a writer of novels and plays, a wit, a politician, and a preacher.

One by one I have taken in my sails. By infinite experimentation I have discovered that there are but a few simple things that I can do.

The world has assisted me in making this discovery by the very simple method of paying me for what I can do and ignoring me for what I cannot do.

I suppose everybody, in a way, undergoes this process of coming to himself. And the man who arrives is to be congratulated, even if he finds out that the one thing he can do, and the one thing other people are willing to pay him for doing, is laying brick or trimming whiskers.

I sometimes wonder how many people really find their pigeonhole.

Emerson said: "Few men find themselves before they die."

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

(Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers)
QUERIES
(Find the error in this article)

Is "Were" Plural?
L. B. F.: "I beg to ask a question with reference to your column of July 7. The error in your column on that date was 'last', latter being the right word. However, this was not my guess. I picked the sentence 'He looked as if he were tired,' and decided that that was the error. My reason for picking were must be apparent. 'He looked as if he were tired' sounds all right, but 'He looked as if he was tired' must be correct if we are to be guided by the rules of grammar. The question I wish to ask, and I am sure it will be enlightening to many, is the following: Just what reason is there that permits a plural verb to be used with a singular noun or pronoun? Perhaps it was an error by you." Answer: A word may serve in more than one way; this fact is illustrated by were. It may be used as a plural in the past tense, or as a singular in the past tense. In the foregoing sentence it is used in the latter way, a singular in the past tense, and expresses a supposition; it may or it may not be true that he was tired. It is when you are expressing suppositions that you generally use the form were in the singular; as, if I were you (you are not that person), I would come. The following is an example of the use of were as a plural: Since they were there (they were present), they were all about it.

Dove or Dived?
G. T. W.: "Will you kindly let me know through your column which expression is correct? 'He dove into the water'; or 'He dived into the water.'"

Answer: Either one is correct, but dove is preferable. Dove is colloquial.

Yesterday's Error
"The real difficulty lays in making the proper expression a habit of speech."
The right word is lies.

Vocabulary
Sedulous: "Constant in application or attention; diligent in the pursuit of any object or business; persevering in effort or endeavor; assiduous; as, a sedulous worker."—Standard.

Pronunciation: sed' yu-lus (e as in get; u as in full; u as in but).—Standard, Oxford, Century, and Webster.

For observations: sedulously (adverb); sedulousness (noun).
Origin: sedulous (Latin)—diligent.

THE LISTENING POST

Nobody is born to the purple any more.
Except a few inconsequential kings.
And their purple is only figurative.
For in the latter day world kings are not important.

Those of them who remain are figureheads.
They cannot make laws.
They cannot put forth edicts.
They cannot declare war.
They cannot take away life or liberty or property.

So a king's purple carries with it very little authority.

But there is purple worn by men who have achieved it.

But who were not born to it.
Men who have wielded more influence than kings.

And who were born in humble circumstances.

So men in these latter days have to achieve the purple of influence and authority and dignity.

Except in a few places.
In England for instance.
A country of conservatism.

And yet a country in which real merit and spirit can rise high.

The most influential publisher in that country, whose death occurred recently, was not at all born to the purple.

But he had the stuff in him that climbs.

And through his newspapers and publications he had perhaps as much influence as any man in England.

He had strength.
He had vision.
He had courage.
He had spirit to work harder than any of his associates.

And the combination made him eminent in his profession.

He rose higher in influence than numberless men born to titles and estates.

Because he had the stuff in him that climbs.
And the prime minister of England is another man who was by no means born to the purple.

But he has achieved.

The President of the United States was by no means born to the purple.

He achieved it.

And in the cabinet of the president we find men not inheriting place but achieving it.

You can't be born to the purple in art, letters, business, statecraft, profession or whatever it may be.

Eminent physicians were not born to the purple.

They have achieved by application and study and constant effort and vision.

Indeed, you can't be born to the purple of anything worth while.

So while some of us are lamenting and bewailing and fretting about opportunity, it is well to remember that the world is full of men in the purple.

Who achieved it.

With no more opportunity than opens to you.

If you choose to take it.

We can't all be statesmen.

We can't all be publishers of world renown.

We can't all be eminent scientists or teachers or preachers or bankers.

But we can all rise to the purple of self-respect and usefulness and thrift and good citizenship.

But the purple does not come to us.

We have to seek the purple.

SONGS OF THE POETS

Music, When Soft Voices Die—By Percy Bysshe Shelley (1792-1822)

Music, when soft voices die,
Vibrates in the memory;
Odours, when sweet violets sicken,
Live within the sense they quicken.

Rose leaves, when the rose is dead,
Are heap'd for the beloved's bed;
And so thy thoughts, when thou art gone,
Love itself shall slumber on.

THE AUTO HONK AND THE LION

There are few parts of the world where the automobile is now unknown, but nowhere has its utility been put to a more startling demonstration than near Kakuru, the site of the new Uasin Gishu railroad, in Africa. Here it was proved by a test that the foot of an automobile horn will put to rout a troupe of flesh-hunting lions. When several lions attacked the oxen of two native drivers, a motorist, turning a curve in the road, sounded his horn. The result, told in a despatch from Nairobi, Kenya Colony, is interesting because of its local analogies. The lions paused for a moment in amazement, then united in a roar of stark fear and took to the bush.

It does not follow that the lions in the vicinity of Kakuru are characterized by a timidity not to be found in others of their species, nor will lions generally lose their reputation of supremacy over the animal kingdom because of the unbecoming cowardice of a few of their number. On the contrary, the Kakuru lions were inspired by a justifiable trepidation, and their abrupt flight denotes a presence of mind that is evidence of exceptional animal intelligence. Automobile fatalities have become so frequent, and the belief of automobile drivers in the survival of the fittest is so evident, that the foot of the automobile horn has come to have much the same effect on the human pedestrian. At the sound, which is often more of a threat than a warning, those who prize life highly and are without suicidal intent are seen to jump, dodge, catapult and scatter in every direction.

And it is not surprising that the sound of the motor horn, often alarming to the most nerveless human being, strikes terror into the heart of the King of Beasts, though he is unfearful of the most terrifying cries of wild creatures that haunt the African jungle.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

THE COMING CATAclysm

[New York Times]

Life will be much simpler by this time next month, according to reports from Philadelphia. Dr. M. A. Nobles, a physician and geologist of that city, says that within thirty days there will be a volcanic cataclysm which will wipe out southern Europe, northern Africa, all of Asia and the Pacific coast of the United States. The trouble will start near Budapest, there, according to the doctor, are at present seventeen volcanoes. They must be disguised as Awakening Magyars, but no doubt when the famous Lieutenant Hejjas and his colleagues really go into eruption they will make things lively. From Budapest the thing will spread. Northern Africa will disappear. There will be no longer an Egyptian problem. The Desert of Sahara will pass into history, and "The Sheikh" will be read by posterity as a picture of the social customs of a vanished world.

Asia will go, too, and the British government will not have to worry about India. The gentlemen who almost climbed Mount Everest this year will never have to go back for another trial, for Everest will not be there. Unless new mountains are thrown out to unheard-of heights by the eruption, their altitude record of 27,300 feet will stand for all time. Japan will vanish, too, and Mr. Harding will be able to break the railroad and coal strikes with the labor of the unemployed publicists hitherto engaged in speculations on the destiny of Asia and the future of the Pacific.

Finally, there will be no more California. The legend of the Los Angeles climate will be explained by future ages as a solar myth, or a pale reflection of old tales of the Elysian Fields and the Gardens of the Hesperides. Hollywood will have passed away, and our reformers will have to adopt the Narcissus complex and start looking for evil in their own hearts. It will be a smaller and simpler world, and we hope less expensive. Hall to the cataclysm!

OBSERVED AT A GLANCE

Friends of Bill Hart really had hoped that he would regard marriage, off the screen, as having elements of permanency.

A good rule for officials in dealing with bandits is to "treat 'em rough" and let the coroner do the rest.

That Germany can't hand over that which it does not possess seems to be a simple matter of recognized physical law.

Sheriff deputies killed two robbers, fatally wounded another and captured a fourth, a fair haul for a few minutes' gunning.

There would be some difficulty in picking a republican out of a three-cornered caucus composed of La Follette, Borah and Johnson.

Denial is heard that the film industry is an industry. Because it brings home the bacon, some are inclined to regard it as an art.

"A bandit queen" is any crooked female who happens to belong to a band of criminals.

There still exists a more than reasonable doubt that a bomb ever settled an industrial dispute.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Robert Louis Stevenson incurred a great responsibility when he wrote the story of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. That tale gave currency to the duality hypothesis. Such duality has since become a favored theme of writers both of fiction, that is to say, real fiction, and fiction faintly disguised as science.

Every human possesses various elements of character. It is beyond belief that one should have a serenity of mind never disturbed by any influence, and another live always in a whirl of angry passions. The most quiet mortal is subject to the emotion of anger. In one this may be more violent than would be displayed by another under similar provocation.

When a person under the impulse of anger does some rash act, commits a crime, hurts the feelings of a friend, throws his wife out of doors, beats his children, he offers duality as a defense. It is no defense. He had permitted the baser part of his nature to control him.

A well behaved citizen, averse to the use of profanity, hits his thumb with a hammer, and swears right roundly. Nobody blames him much, but if he asserted that it was not he who had done this, but the other personality that sometimes sneaked into his skin, it would be quite natural to tell him he was a fool, and let it go at that.

Atrocious murder is perpetrated by an individual. The plea at once is set up that the individual is not one, but two; that the bad one of the pair is the guilty. Well, all right. Then the good one was in mighty bad company, and ought to take the consequences.

Anita Baldwin has earned the gratitude of the community through her gift of $50,000 that resulted in establishment of a clinic for poor children in Los Angeles.

The Chicago jury trying a bunch of political ruffians for murder failed to agree, exactly the outcome that had been expected.

Moreover, the victim of the assassination had been a policeman who evidently failed to co-operate with the bunch in question.

Much has been said of the marvelous inventions of the period covered by the lives of living centenarians, and all of it is true. But the greater inventions have for the most part belonged to times by memory within easy reach of men of middle age.

Only the younger folk of today were born into the world of the telephone, electric light, automobile, phonograph, moving picture, typewriter, flying machine, linotype. Their parents had witnessed the advent of all of these, and many more that have become necessities of every day use, or luxuries so familiar as to excite no comment.

Violence was certain to be the concomitant of the strike unless the strike was settled almost immediately. This was an assurance in the mind of every thoughtful man.

That such violence was slow in appearing must be ascribed to the general non-use of liquor. This is in part a triumph for prohibition. The fact is to be remembered that men who run locomotives and trains, or who do any work upon which depends the safety of the traveling public, do not drink. They are obliged to be total abstainers. Even before the days of prohibition, abstinence had become a habit with them, and they had ceased to chafe against the restraint.

There is a tale of a penniless lad who approached London, and, awed by the sight of the great city, was about to start away. Suddenly he heard the bells through the distance and to him they seemed to say "Turn again Whittington, lord mayor of London." And in after years the lad became lord mayor of London.

When the Irish lad who died the other day as Lord Northcliffe, first drew near to London, what message did the great bells ring to him?

In ordinary times a trip across the continent is nothing to get excited about. It requires considerable cash to pay for the necessary ticket, but the experience is no tax on courage. The people who started east on the first Santa Fe train, however, had to have courage.

There is no delight in contemplation of even the possibility of being marooned on the desert at this season.

Efforts are said to be in progress to raise a large fund for defense of a woman charged with atrocious murder. It is said that the money is to come from another state.

Probably soliciting of contributions in this community would be lost energy.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

Little Miss Virginia gave me a good line this morning. She's always doing that, somehow. She is about the size of a child and her voice is that of an angel and she is as pretty as a peach that has been ripened on the sunny side of an old French wall. But she has the guile of the Old Harry.

"Another friend has thrown me down," I groaned to her. "Deliberately trimmed me. It is enough to shatter one's faith in friendship."

Little Miss Virginia always wraps her bitterest pill in the most sugared words. So that it took me some time to discover that she was calling me a fool.

"You are to blame," said she. "You made friends of the wrong sort of people when you were young and impressionable. You were not to blame for that, perhaps. Environment, a similarity of age and tastes, a little rough sledding taken together without whimpering produces what often passes for friendship."

But friendship, as little Miss Virginia sees it, is of finer texture. Friends give as well as receive, she thinks. A good companion, a free-handed spender, even an easy lender may not be a good friend. A friend has loyalty and understanding and kindness for his friend—BUT the other must have the same or there is no friendship. A tie of that sort must bind both or not bind at all.

"Your latest disappointment," she said, "should have been no disappointment at all. You and Morrie lived in the same boarding house once and your wives were of the same age and liked the same shows and none of you had any money. So you called yourselves friends."

Little Miss Virginia pursed up her red mouth.

"Bah," she said. "There is no more understanding and companionship and affection between you and Morrie now than there is between two strangers. You have grown apart because you have travelled on different roads. There was never any true sympathy between you."

"He trimmed me," I said. "He sold me some sour stock."

"Next time," she said, "you will not buy stock because of friendship. Loan money to a friend. Give money to a friend. Back a friend with credit if you will. But never buy stock because of friendship. Buy stock on a business basis only."

REAL RUDE IS TUESDAY CLUB YOUNGSTERS HAD

SATISFIED FEELS MANY TIMES OF THEIR WITH PARK AT PARK YOUNG LIVES

Expert on Them Things Says It's 'Bout Right

By RUDE PRICE of Idaho

Yesterday I went out to the Glendale Merchants' Annual Picnic at the Verdugo Eagle Rock Tungsten La Cresenta Monrovia Bank park. This is right purty place for a park and right purty thought it up did purty good.

All the beauty, grace and brains of the community was there and of course the male contingent had to follow them out there too.

And altogether there was quite a crowd an' some was afraid they would get lost for they had big buttons on their coats with their names printed on them.

And some had printed ribbons of all colors an' some had just their plane close on so taking it by and large it was a gay multi-tude.

And there was everything good to eat and drink out there except. And they pitched horseshoes an' played baseball an' the Cleary A. C. baseballers beat the Glendale baseballers even if they did make the Cleary pitcher fling the ball with his left hand.

And they had a jar of beans and who guessed how many beans was in the jar was to get a prize and it wasn't no trick at all to guess the beans because they filled a pint glass jar full so there was just a pint of beans.

And there was all kinds of races an' all kinds of contests and lots of music an' dancing an' prizes an' folks an' babies an' kids an' everyting an' the first annual picnic given by the Glendale Credit Men's Association at G. V. E. R. T. L. C. M. B. Park was a howling success.

And a lot of fellers got hold of a rope an' tried to pull it in 2 an' all the while there was a good sharp ax leanin' against a tree. But I never said nothin', I just let 'em pull an' when they got all tuckered out an' quit I asked a feller why they didn't cut the rope in 2 and he says, "We don't want it cut in 2" an' I says, "Then when in tarnation was you all a pullin' so hard?"

An' he says, "We was tryin' to take the rope away from the other side." An' I says, "Was you mad at the other side?" An' he says, "No we wasn't mad at the other side, that was a tug-of-war." An' I says, "Maybe it was a tug-of-war but whose rope was it, yours or the other side's?" An' he says, "What's the matter with you are you a nut?"

An' I got all hot up and says "No I aint no nut, are you?" an' he says "now don't get gay with me or I'll bust you one." An' just then Mr. Reeves come along and says, "I got a prize for the homeliest man on the grounds an' I'm looking for him." An' I says, "Aint there no looking glass out here Mr. Reeves?" An' he just grined an' kep' on looking. I guess he didn't know what I meant.

An' that kind of tickled the tug-of-war man an' he says "I gess you aint a nut, come on an' see a friend of mine." An' we went over to the feller leanin' against a tree an' the T. W. feller says, "Jack I think this guy is O. K." an' jack says, "all right" an' the tug of war feller went away from there. An' Jack says, "I can get you a pint for $10 dollars. So I jewed him down to $9.40 an' give him the money. An' he says, "You hold the money of shoes till I go get it. I'll be right back." An' I says "All right."

An' I waited quite a while an' he didn't come an' so then I waited a while longer an' he didn't come an' then I says to myself, "you old fool, that slicker got you for $9.40. I bet the shoes in this box is old, wornout ones."

An' I opened the box an' I'll be dammed if the pint wasn't in the box. I'd been jewed. I was in the time. So I put the bottle in my pocket an' started lightly off toward a more secluded spot an' I tripped over a rope on the Mr. Moore for Senator Clift's tent an' fell down an' broke the bottle.

Well, some fellers sniffed a couple of times an' edges away toward me an' I edged away an' kep' comin' an' me goin' an' as I went along every once in a while more fellers would move my way until I had quite a fellerly. An' I got scared of bein' arrested because I knew I could never explain to Amelia if I was, an' I went faster an' faster an' my fellerly come on faster an' bigger an' purty soon I was arunnin' like a whitehead an' them after me.

Well they knocked me about a mile down the road an' I fit my best but it didn't do no good. So I says, "well boys you got me, but if there's any way out of this besides goin' to jail I'll do it." An' one of them says, "all we want to know is where did you get it an' is there any left?"

So I came along home an' Amelia says "Rube Price! What do I smell?" an' I says, "Amelia, you smell a keen disappointment."

An' that's all.

Committee Sells Out to Line of Hungry Folks

A group of women who worked hard and earned all they made, were the members of the Tuesday Afternoon club who secured the concession for serving luncheon on the picnic grounds Wednesday, from which they cleared $93.

Mrs. B. O. Holbrook and Mrs. J. C. Sargent had charge of it, but Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, chairman of the ways and means committee, was there all day, helping at every stage of the game, from cutting pies and serving them, to washing dishes.

Others who rendered most efficient service were Mrs. Ella Richardson, who was not on the committee, but who volunteered when she saw her assistance was needed; Mrs. R. Downing, Mrs. V. B. Atwood, Mrs. Bassett, Mrs. J. W. Walton, Mrs. S. A. Davis, Mrs. R. E. Richardson, Miss Ida Myers, Mrs. P. L. Hollingsworth, and Mrs. Frank Brown.

The menu included sandwiches, coffee, cake, pie, hot tea and iced tea, and everything was excellent, home-made food, so much in demand that long lines of people stood in line for it.

MRS. PENDROY AT BIG CITY PICNIC

Penetrates Blockage of Roads and Reaches Park

Mrs. Earl Pendroy delighted her friends by appearing at the picnic Wednesday. It has been announced that she would not get home from the east, where she has been since the first of July, until Thursday.

As it was, she was delayed, as the trains are running slowly and carefully, particularly in the danger zones. At one time the train was without water for four hours, as the supply had been cut off by an employee who was supposed to be a strike sympathizer.

The cars were all crowded and dirty, and the accommodations poor, but were the best that could be provided under the circumstances, and everybody made the best of it.

Mrs. Pendroy sounded a most encouraging note of optimism relative to the business situation, declaring there is a reaction from the dull times we have been hearing so much about, and trade is anticipating a prosperous season unless crippled by labor troubles.

K. P. LODGE TO ATTEND FUNERAL

Harry Stock, aged 54, a resident of Glendale for many years, died at the Santa Fe hospital, Los Angeles, on Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Mr. Stock had been at Glendale for medical treatment, and resided with Capt. J. A. Neal, 302 North Louise street.

The funeral services will be under the direction of the Knights of Pythias lodge and the Baptist church, the time and place to be announced later.

'SEMI SELF SERVICE' AT THE WILLIAMS

Some of the new drapery stuffs seen at Williams' and elsewhere are wonderfully pretty. No one seems to be dead sure what to call them, and so they are variously named as "Terry," "Ratine" and "Eponge." When closely examined they suggest a Turkish towel because of the looped threads on the surface. It is hardly deep enough to call "pile." Nevertheless, it gives a depth to the printed pattern that a smooth surface does not afford.

The new curtain stuffs are also wonderfully pretty, particularly the Tuscan nets, of which the Williams' store has a very attractive assortment. These are suggestive of the fishnets and the patterns are revivals of those used in the hand-made Tuscan lace and handed down from generation to generation.

As usual, Mr. Williams is featuring "notions." He arranges them like a cafeteria counter down the middle of the store, where patrons can circle around it, pick out what they want and then check out with a clerk when they have made their selections. He prides himself on having the best assortment and most conveniently placed "notions" in town and on his "semi-self service."

MISS HOISETH HAS READY-TO-WEARS

Miss Hoiseith, the milliner, on West Broadway, is having an early showing of ready-to-wear hats in felt and satin, grays, sand-color and browns predominating. One especially pretty model has the feather pompons that are to be a favorite adornment this year.

Reports Barbara Miller, Who Watched Them for the Press

By BARBARA MILLER

What pleased the children most at the picnic? There were hundreds of little folks on the grounds and they were every bit as interested in the momentous events of the day as their parents.

A big majority of the children were the proud possessors of fetching caps, of the popular white, with black and vermillion emblems. These chapeaux were a cross between the conventional Highland bonnets and an adaption of the Dutch head-dress. But whatever their antecedents, the youngsters were most happy over their new possessions, the clever idea of the Japan Art and Tea company.

Though it is a popular supposition that happiness does not come to mortals, even in youth, still to at least were blissful at the picnic yesterday. Two small misses, ages three and five years, established themselves under one of the spreading live oak trees of the new park, each one the proud possessor of a brightly colored paper bird, which revolved merrily with the breezes. There they remained for the better part of the afternoon, perfectly contented with their new toys.

The daylight fireworks were a great success, and the display undoubtedly had the advantage over such night presentations, for there was something left after the explosion and the tableau. There was a great rush to capture the prize, after each shell had exploded, and the American flag drew a huge following of small boys, who even came up to the top of a nearby hill to gain the coveted bits of brightly colored paper.

This is the true viewpoint of the pie-eating contest, for we got the facts from one who failed to participate. Though the event was a great success, there was one glaring defect—there were so many more boys than pies! Perhaps 25 youngsters were unable to demonstrate their powers of devouring food because there were no more of the appetizing pies to be eaten. Truth compels us to state that it seemed that some of the contestants were more interested in the pies than in the potential prizes.

One young man of about 12, who had been so successful as to gain a place in the contest, was noticed industriously eating a cold dog. After he had finished with it he was planning to eat a pie or two. On being advised that it might be wise to save all of his internal capacity for the forthcoming pie, he calmly thrust the "dog" in his pocket to await further developments. And Wednesday was undeniably a warm day!

And, after partaking of food in its various forms all during the day, each and every car stopped on the way home at the little stand just below the park, where sweet cider was "to be had." There's always room for a little more, it seems.

There was one defect about that dance, however. When little Miss Adeline Woodbury did her solo dance, the crowd was so dense that only the favored few on the front row could see the dancer. After the number was over the floor was cleared and the entire "gallery" had a splendid view of the dancing.

Perhaps the two ladies who had the very best time of all at the dance pavilion were two misses of about eight, who danced every dance together. Maybe they were the ones who requested the ever-popular "Sneak" so often.

To buy or not to buy—that was the question. And it was the question of the day at the picnic. There were stands and there were vendors, most prominent among these being the Business and Professional Woman's club members, who were scattered throughout the grounds. Everyone treated every one else and a fine time was had by all. After the deluge of what about the morning after?

And there were the things which one brought home from the picnic—the bags of sticky candies, the popcorn, the gum, the favors and the political literature—an great quantities.

"DO IT NOW!"

A friends of ours moved the other day and paid an increase in rent. But he thought it worth it—he now has a place where he can hang his clothes. —L. A. Times, "Pen Pals."

Dear Mr. Editor: We are sorry that your friend did not know of the lovely home that we are going to tell about here. Large rooms, airy, conveniently arranged, invite you to make yourself comfortable. The rooms are extra large; Batchelder tile mantel in the living room. Two beautiful bedrooms. Wall bracket attachments be side the regular lighting fixtures and wall paper that shows great care in the selection of harmonious shades. By golly (apologies to John Steven Mc.) I almost forgot the closets—they are large and plentiful, one bedroom having two. A beautifully appointed bathroom, woodstone floor, with a valspar finish. The house is well constructed, nestles on the side of a hill, where a good view obtains, and is easily accessible. Sure! He can get it on terms. Price only $6500, or all of it, so tell him to drive into the garage, shut off the gas. He'll never have to move and there'll always be a place to hang his clothes.

Kyne is big in every sense of word—in theme, plot, action, duction and cast. Not to miss a truly remarkable picture.

The appearance of Clyde Oates, the violinist of note, is another reason why one should attend the T. D. & L. His work is indeed unusual. He is a master of the violin and is meeting with cere approval and applause at evening performances. Tomorrow and Saturday at 2

BRIEF ORATORY MARKS PICNIC PROGRAM

Congressman Lineberger, Supervisor Wright and Sen. Francis Speak

Congressman Walter Lineberger of the Ninth Congressional district spoke first as the honor guest of the Glendale National Exchange club at a picnic dinner in the new municipal park.

Congressman Lineberger gave a straight from the shoulder talk. Previous to the talk by Congressman Lineberger, City Manager Reeves read two telegrams congratulating the people of Glendale on the acquisition of the Glendale-Verdugo park.

The telegrams were from Mattison B. Jones, Democratic candidate for governor, who is campaigning in the northern part of the state, and the other was from Mayor Spencer Robinson of Glendale, who is accompanying Mr. Jones on his tour.

In his address Mr. Lineberger said that he is particularly proud of this section of the Ninth Congressional district because of the statistics of the growth of this district. This section is the white spot of the United States today and Glendale is the white spot of the entire ninth district.

This park being dedicated on this occasion is only one evidence of the strides that this community is taking forward. The citizenship of Glendale is not only striving for the material advancement, but the spiritual welfare of the people as evidenced by this park.

Congressmen from other districts have said that the ninth district is getting the best people from other communities. This is evidence that the ninth district is the peer, if not the superior, of any district in the United States.

Congressman Lineberger said: "Statesmanship is not genius or a gift of the gods. It is the result of wholehearted and honest work for the best interests of the individuals represented by the Solon. I have tried to be all that the word representative implies. I shall at all times truly represent the people."

He said that he is not a politician and that politics needs the same morality that prevails in the ordinary life of the district. He said:

"I shall always be honest, fair and square with you. I have no ambition other than to serve you. It is the views of the average man which should prevail in a republican form of government."

"I can never hope to be greater than the source from which I come. I hope to continue to reflect your sentiments, politically and morally. I court criticism and do not stipulate that it be constructive, for I would rather hear 998 forms of criticism that were not constructive and hear the two constructive criticisms than to lose these two. I have great faith in the intelligence and fair-mindedness of the American people."

Supervisor Henry Wright was present and was called upon for a few words. He said that he was not prepared to make a talk, but he was glad to congratulate the people of Glendale on the dedication of their new park.

"The county should provide some spot for people to enjoy that which nature has provided. The county supervisors are proud of this county and the other counties of the state are realizing that they must get busy to keep step with the growth of Los Angeles county," said Mr. Wright.

In closing Mr. Wright told of the marvelous growth of this county and said that this growth is due to the enterprise and public spiritedness of the citizens.

Senator Francis of Iowa, who has lately moved to Glendale and become extensively interested in the Sparr tract in the canyon here, addressed the picnicers as follows:

"Hailing from Iowa, I feel completely at home in California, for as New York has more Jews than Jerusalem and more Irish than Ireland, so California has more Iowans than Californians. And these people of Iowa came here not because Iowa lacks opportunities, but because California has greater opportunities."

"It is this western spirit, the tendency to move westward, that has made for world progress throughout all the ages. Only Alexander of all the great conquerors, moved eastward, and as soon as death ended his great plans his eastward movement ceased and his great project failed."

"The cradle of the human race was in the Far East and human progress has been westward since civilization began. This westward spirit caused the pilgrim fathers to leave Old England, brave the tempest of the Atlantic and establish their new homes upon our bleak New England shores, all for the sake of liberty and freedom."

"It carried their children across the mountains and valleys of New York, into the Ohio wilderness, over the prairies of Indiana and Illinois, until they stood upon the banks of the Mississippi and gazed wonderingly upon Iowa—the richest agricultural region of all the world."

"It was this spirit that brought my parents from New York to Wisconsin and then to Iowa while the Indians still roamed over her prairies and the howl of wolves was midnight music."

"It was this western spirit that led men across the plains, over the mountains, and through the burning deserts 75 years ago when California first attracted the mind and fancy and captured the imagination of adventurous men."

"It was this western spirit that brought most of you here, for California is so young and has grown so rapidly that the great majority

Though the day ends and time's relentless sweep
Moves on to midnight and the dark and gloom,
Be it what time it may this side the tomb,
There is still time.

There is still time.
Though thick the burdens rest and dull the care.
Though the way long and great the load we bear
Though fate be stern and struggle have no end,
Though there may seem no joy, no hope, no friend,
There is still time.

There is still time.
Though skies be overcast and chance seem lost.
Though seas be high and waves be tempest tossed,
Though ships be near the reef without the gate,
While there is life, no chance comes once too late,
There is still time.

of her people are from other states. "And what have you accomplished in less than 75 years? And what will you accomplish in another 75 years?"

"Three-quarters of a century ago the great valley now occupied by a hundred growing, thriving cities was as much desert, as much waste land, as that over which I came the other day. But it had possibilities. God had given this region everything needed to make it the garden spot, the most delightful region in all the world. Only he had locked her treasures in nature's vault, leaving it to man to find and use the key. And that key was water and you men of the west found and have used it and nature's riches are yours."

"You have penetrated the mountain fastnesses and through aqueducts rivaled only by those of Ancient Rome, have brought that water to your homes, have scattered it with lavish hands over your fields and beneath your trees and the glorious sun of California has made that water shine and sparkle on its way in transforming the desert into the garden."

"And you have seized upon the laws of nature, making those laws your servants and through them have harnessed the tremendous power of this water as it came rushing and crashing down out of the mountains, to turn the wheels of industry, to move street cars and heavy trains and furnish light for your homes and your cities."

"Today you are just at the threshold of accomplishment—opportunity is before you, the deeds of yesterday are but an encouragement and proclamation of the possibilities of tomorrow."

In the lives of men before today the valley we now face will contain the second largest city in America and before our children are lured into that dreamless sleep that knows no awakening, there will be found the greatest city in all the world."

"I like the spirit of you men of the west. You have vision, you encourage optimism. You possess the fortitude of your convictions. You seek the day's result, but you plan for the tomorrow's need. You build cities upon the hillside and on the plains as men build them in fanciful dreams—overnight and with the touch of Aladdin."

"You today dedicate the great magnificent park, not in the spirit of tomorrow's vision, but in the vision of today. You have none of that manana spirit which so destroys the great nation to our south—yours is to do everything today and then find something more for tomorrow."

"The foundation you are today erecting will be your monuments in the future. Local pride with no more appropriate thought than to express the earnest hope the rugged manhood which made these wonders possible may be manifest in your children for the accomplishment of still greater marvels."

J. W. Fawkes, of Burbank, candidate for the republican nomination ended his great plans his eastward speech during the evening, at the Park. He spoke as follows:

"My platform is my text. It suggests briefly, all that I care to discuss or to promise at this time."

"I am well aware that the work of being a supervisor in this large and rich county is a man's job. Taking into consideration almost 40 million dollars of taxes to be levied and disbursed, the management of the county farm, hospitals, and buildings, the great work on highways and flood control, the statement in my platform that the supervisors are managing a corporation with a capital of 50 million dollars can be better understood. All this, and more, I carefully considered before announcing my candidacy. I want you to know that I fully realize the responsibility and do not shrink it."

"In view of all this, I am fully aware that in claiming the ability to do this work, I am making no small claim. Nor do I either need or desire to speak disparagingly of the gentlemen opposing me. If it be necessary to wallow in the mire to secure my election, I prefer to continue attending to my private business."

"When I refer in my platform to the desirability of changing the method of appointing election officers, I mean no reflection on any supervisor now in office. They had nothing to do with enacting the state law under which they must make these appointments, and a part or all of them may be opposed to it. I am simply criticizing a system which I believe is wrong and dangerous. It is wrong because it is based on political favoritism and not on efficient public service. You know and I know, that elections would be better conducted and the final counts would be more accurately and promptly made, if men and women carefully selected for their skill were on all boards."

"Instead, they are more likely to be appointed for the number of votes they can control or because recommended by some influential friends, regardless of their capabilities. When the entire responsibility of registration and election rests on the registrar of voters, why, in the name of common sense, is he not permitted to organize this most important corps of workers—election officers? The registrar has not the political axes to grind or the money to make in the office. He holds office by appointment under civil service and has no personal interest in politics."

"It is a well-known fact, known to every member of the board of supervisors as well as the public generally, that no department of the county service today is better organized than the registration department and that the only thing to make it wholly efficient is to allow the registrar to select and train the entire crew of election officers."

"Another work to which my platform commits me, is the continuance of flood control measures and more and better highways. These are matters of tremendous importance that will continue to require the best thought and service of the supervisors. When elected, I will consider it my duty as well as my privilege and pleasure to give the best that is in me to these great undertakings."

"I think I may claim without boasting, that my travels and observations in various states and in Europe have given me a broader conception of what all this means to our community or a state, than if I had not had such opportunity for study."

"With the increased interest and activity of the United States government in these matters—particularly flood control—this county will face in the near future greater problems than ever before."

"Finally, to schools, we justly boast in California of our schools. Particularly in Los Angeles county. Probably few people understand that the board of supervisors are charged with the chief responsibility of financing everything pertaining to schools, including the city of Los Angeles and all the other incorporated cities and school districts in the county. Every certificate to teach is issued by the county superintendent of schools."

"As a supervisor I will consider this the gravest of all responsibilities placed upon me."

"First, upon the education of all of our youth and second, upon the purity of the ballot, and the proper conduct of elections, rest the safety and the future of our state and our nation. With proper education of the masses, the rest will be safeguarded."

"Thus, briefly, have I outlined what my conception is of the duty of a supervisor of this great county. If you feel that my conception is broad and correct, and that I have the experience and ability to carry on the work, show it by voting for me."

PARK AVE. JOG TO BE CURVED

Everything is in readiness for the rounding out of the corners of Park avenue and San Fernando road and in this way eliminate, in a measure, the bad effect caused by the jog at this intersection. Assistant City Engineer Stone has secured the deeds for these four corners and the necessary proceedings will start at once. In addition to rounding off these corners a storm drain culvert will be constructed on San Fernando road on a continuation of the north side of Park, this to carry off the water that collects at this corner at every storm.

E. E. DAIL BECOMES TRUE GLENDELIAN AT THE START

On Arrival Buys Lot and Builds Home Before Starting Business

The experience of E. E. Dail, who came to Glendale, and established himself in the jewelry business at 136 North Brand, the early part of July, is a fair sample of hundreds of newcomers in our city. For thirteen to fourteen years he had conducted a jewelry business in Waynesburg, Pa. A change of climate was found necessary for Mrs. Dail and California naturally suggested itself. Her parents had come to Glendale last October, attracted to this locality by friends in Eagle Rock and so the Dails came with the intention of starting in some other line of business, having sold all their stock.

Glendale justified all representations and so sure were they it was where they wished to be that they bought a lot at 1307 East Lexington and built a house into which they moved about the first of August. In the meantime, Mr. Dail's experience in jewelry inclined him to that instead of a new venture, and accordingly, he opened the store mentioned, with a brand new stock. He is well pleased with the patronage which has come to him thus far and is looking for an excellent trade when everybody comes home from the mountains and beaches and settles down at home. They like their new home very much and believe they struck it just right on location."

When asked how California impressed him, he said the thing he hadn't yet gotten used to was the lack of natural vegetation, greenery. He came from a hilly section of Pennsylvania, heavily wooded, and in his boyhood home in North Carolina the vegetation was even more rank.

Beautiful Forest Lawn "Among the Hills"

There are but few burial parks—in the United States—if any—that have planned for a more extensive plan of improvements than has the management of Forest Lawn Memorial Park. Its 250 acres—beautifully improved with a park-like system of landscape gardening and costly buildings. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent—and hundreds of thousands of dollars will be spent to complete the various units now under construction.

Everything that art, science and loving care can devise has been planned for different forms of burial—be it earth burial, mausoleum crypt, cremation, columbarium niche or private vault.

Stability starts with the crude
One of the most important requirements of a good motor oil is that it possess stability—that is, that it maintain its chemical composition and its lubricating body under all conditions of engine operation.
If an oil changes its chemical composition—"breaks down"—at high operating temperatures, it can no longer maintain a lubricating film between the bearing surfaces, and its value as a lubricant is destroyed.
Certain crude oils possess a higher degree of stability than others. Because of its large production of practically every type of crude, this company is free to choose for the making of Zerolene only those crudes which are particularly adapted for the purpose.
The Patented Vacuum Process
In the process of distilling and refining these selected crudes, it is of the greatest importance not to destroy their natural "oiliness" and stability. For this reason we employ our own patented high-vacuum process exclusively. By this process the oil produced—Zerolene—retains all the natural "oiliness" and stability of the original, selected crude from which it is made.
No other refiner on the Pacific Coast uses any form of vacuum distillation. No other refiner in the United States uses as high a vacuum as this company.
Zerolene of the correct grade for your car gives perfect lubrication and permits the development of maximum power, speed and gasoline mileage.
